

Ihor SHPEKTORENKO

APPROACHES TO PROFESSIONAL MOBILITY OF PUBLIC SERVANT IN MODERN CONCEPTS OF PROFESSIONALISATION

The article states that today scientists created powerful scientific foundation that allows you to explore different aspects and features of the personal professionalization aspect and workers specific professional groups - public servants. A much smaller part of the scientific works contains requirements for the final result of professional mobile worker.

The objective of the article is to study approaches to interpreting the contents (areas) professionalism, including professional public servant to participate in discussions on the structure of professionalism, research activity-expression of professionalism and professional mobility of staff, including staff public servants.

Activity-expression professionalization process is, in fact, the process and the result of professional activity that has educational, psychological, acmeological, sociological, activity, social, economic and other definitions. Summed up that oftener there is the intrinsic, substantive concept of professionalism. Various scholars have identified motivational, value-orientation; functional, operational, activity, technological, regulatory areas of professionalism.

The actual problem is the description of professional activity, but this issue deals fairly limited number of scientists. With increased scientific research towards the study of different aspects of professional mobility has considerable interest and activity professional mobility as an expression of quality personnel, including personnel of the public service. Conceptualization problem of activity-professional mobility expression, from our position, not only requires the allocation of «levels» in understanding the concept of «professional mobility», but levels in formation that consists of a system of requirements for the process in obtaining this result.

Activity-aspect in the sense of professional mobility involves understanding certain aspects by activity – namely in terms, characteristics, attributes the profession. Functional structure of professional mobility can be represented as follows: professional mobility on the application of rising materials, tools, ways to use these tools, the final results, referral path of rising material in the final product, professional mobility (and activity, process, role aspect of professional mobility with a focus on the result).

The author proposes to allocate semantic, design, interim (resource), corrective, communicative spheres of professionalism, reflecting management functions. The author defines perspective problems of research in this field of expertise.